DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-3, 7-9, 11-12, and 16-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Castaneda et al. [6707367].

Castaneda discloses a substantially planar inductor on a dielectric substrate 44 comprising a conducting track 14 having a spiral shape and a predetermined number N of concentric turns, a first pair of access points [first nodes of first and second portions] corresponding to the ends of the track, second pair of access points [taps of second portions] different from the access points of the first pair and placed at two respective regions of the track [see figure 3].

Regarding claims 2 and 11, the track has an axial symmetry of determined axis and perpendicular to bisector of the first pair of access points.

Regarding claims 3 and 12, the track has an axial symmetry of determined axis and perpendicular to bisector of the second pair of access points.

Regarding claims 7-8, 16, the turns of conducting track are polygonal/octagonal.

Regarding claims 17-18, the claims are method counterpart of product claims 1-3.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Castaneda et al.

Castaneda discloses the claimed invention except for the second pair of access points are located respectively at approximately one quarter and three quarters of the extended length of the first conducting track. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to locate access points on center position with respect to the length of the track, since it has been held that rearranging parts of an invention involves only routine skill in the art. In re Japikse, 86 USPQ 70.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 4-5, 13-15, and 19-21 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claim 13 recites inter alia, a second conductive track having an axis coincident with the axis of symmetry of the first conducting track, and electrically connected to the first conducting track in a region corresponding to the middle of the extended length of the first conducting track.

Claim 19 recites inter alia, forming a second conductive track having an axis coincident with the axis of symmetry of the first conducting track, and electrically connected to the first conducting track in a region corresponding to the middle of the extended length of the first conducting track.

Conclusion

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. See PTO-892 form.
